

LICENSES REDUCED

Only Seven of Twenty-Six Applicants Successful

NO TREATING; NO BOTTLES

Strict Rules Laid Down—Judge Huff Dissents in Every Instance—Wholesale and Distillers Refused.

At 3:15 o'clock yesterday afternoon Attorney Edward M. Pennell closed his argument for the Remonstrants at the License Court and a recess was taken until the ringing of the bell.

Shortly after the ringing of the bell the court room was filled. When court was called to order, President Judge Woods announced that the duty was an unpleasant one; that it is the duty of courts to administer, not make law, and in announcing the result in each case stated how each Judge voted.

Most of the refusals were made by Judges Woods and Huff, though in some instances they were unanimous. Judge Huff, true to his campaign pledges, dissented in every instance.

All wholesale and distiller's licenses were refused and only seven of the retail applicants were granted licenses, under certain restrictions, as follows:

John F. McElwee, Hotel Juniata, Everett.

Edward Dill, Union Hotel, Bedford.

H. M. Wing, Bedford Springs.

J. E. Evans, Waverly Hotel, Bedford.

W. E. McCreary, Commercial Hotel, Hyndman.

Thomas Eichelberger, Union Hotel, Everett.

Charles Yont, Grand Central, Bedford.

Rules Laid Down

Bars must close at 10 o'clock p. m. Bars must be closed on Memorial Day, Thanksgiving Day and Christmas.

All screens must be removed from windows of barrooms.

There shall be no treating.

There shall be no selling in bottles.

Nothing shall be sold to those showing signs of drunkenness.

During the sessions which began at noon on Wednesday Bedford's historic temple of justice was crowded to its utmost. Not in the history, perhaps, of License Courts in the county has there been so much interest manifested as in the sessions which closed yesterday.

Most of the applicants, in addition to their regular petitions, had filed supplemental ones and there were remonstrances against all applicants, which remonstrances, in most instances, in number of names outclassed the regular and supplemental petitions. The remonstrances against the granting of wholesale licenses contained the names of nearly 5,000.

The legal battle was a hard fought one. E. M. Pennell, Esq., represented all the remonstrances while petitions were represented by Hon. J. H. Longenecker, Hon. R. C. McNamara, Attorneys Alvin L. Little, R. C. Haderman, Frank Fletcher, D. C. Reiley and S. R. Longenecker, some of whom represented several petitions.

The Court House was filled, many of those present being women, when about 1:30 o'clock the Judges took their positions on the bench and the Court Crier announced the opening of the session.

Early in the session Counsel for Remonstrants raised the point that the applications had not been legally advertised, in that the notices did not contain the addresses of the applicants and that the first insertion of the advertisement appeared in special and not regular editions of the papers selected by the Clerk of the Court. He also pointed out some things claimed to be defective in some of the applications, and objected to two of the distillers' applications on the ground that in one instance the applicant was an agent and in the other one of the applicants was an executrix.

Shreiner-Little

At the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert C. Little, on East Pitt Street, at 12:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon Rev. Dr. Culler united in marriage Miss Lena Little, their eldest daughter, and Walter C. Shreiner of Landsdowne, Delaware County.

After a wedding dinner the couple left on the 2 o'clock train on a honeymoon. They will reside at Lansdowne, where the groom is employed as a lumber inspector.

"YANKEE CHARLIE" DEAD

Expired Suddenly in Waverly Hotel Office Wednesday.

Charles Smith, an aged resident of this place and well-known horseman, familiarly known as "Yankee Charlie," died while sitting in a chair in the office at the Waverly Hotel about 8 o'clock Wednesday evening.

He had not been in good health for some time but was on the street during the early evening. Deceased was about 84 years of age and was formerly a stage driver. Sketch of his life will appear next week.

John W. Glass

John William Glass, proprietor of the Barnesboro Inn, Cambria County, died on Tuesday, March 1, at Cambridge Springs, where he had been under treatment for kidney trouble for about six weeks.

Deceased was born in Clearfield County about 38 years ago and was the only son of Andrew Glass. For a number of years the family resided in Bedford, both gentlemen being engaged in the lumber business. They left here about five years ago, since which time he conducted a hotel at Barnesboro. His mother died about four years ago.

Mr. Glass is survived by his wife and one child, father, and the following sisters: Mrs. J. W. Grumbly and Mrs. John T. Hines, of Johnstown; Mrs. Bert Kelly of Beaver, Mrs. Lincoln Gibson of Pine Flats, and Mrs. John M. Clegg of Everett.

Interment was made at Cherry Tree, Indiana County. Deceased was well and favorably known here and his many friends will regret to learn of his death.

Mrs. Charlotte Reislung

Mrs. Charlotte Reislung was born in this county on June 22, 1836, and died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Joseph Manges, near Pine Grove Church, East St. Clair, February 28, 1910; aged 73 years, eight months and six days. The cause of death was heart trouble.

The funeral was held Wednesday morning in the Fishertown Lutheran Church, the service being in charge of Rev. H. W. Bender, assisted by Rev. Conley of the Evangelical Church.

Mrs. Reislung, whose maiden name was Ott, was first married to Joseph Horn, and after the death of her first husband was united in marriage to Valentine Reislung about 16 years ago. Two children of the first marriage survive, Frank Horn of Fishertown and Mrs. Nettie Manges, with whom she lived. She also leaves four brothers and one sister: Samuel and William, of Bedford Township; Francis, Thomas and Mrs. Levanda Diehl, of Friend's Cove. Mrs. Reislung was a life long member of the Lutheran Church and died in the full assurance of the Christian faith.

Andrew O. Biddle

Andrew O. Biddle died on Saturday, February 26, at his home in Baker's Summit after a week's illness of pneumonia. For a number of years he clerked in the store of A. Z. Pote at that place.

His wife, two small children, and eight brothers and sisters survive, two of whom, Mary and Drusa, reside at Baker's Summit. Interment at that place on Monday.

Killed at Windber

About midnight Saturday, February 26, Howard Moore, a former resident of Fishertown, was instantly killed by a street car at Windber. He had been working in the coal mines at Dunlo and had been in Windber but a short time.

Deceased was a son of the late Harmon Moore and was aged 24 years, nine months and 13 days. The body was taken to Fishertown where funeral services were held in the Reformed Church Tuesday morning, Rev. E. A. G. Hermann of Cessna officiating.

Two sisters and two brothers survive: Marie of New Paris, Mrs. Ed. Knisely and Ralph, of Fishertown, and Watson of near Hollidaysburg.

The State Treasury Question

Attorney General Todd is preparing the papers in the suit to be brought in the State Supreme Court to determine the authority of the Governor to appoint a State Treasurer when the term of John O. Sheatz ends on May 2. The action will probably be brought at Philadelphia and will embrace all of the questions which have arisen since the death of Ex-Senator J. A. Stober, State Treasurer-elect.

An early appointment to the office is expected by officials and it will be followed by the entering of a quo warranto action.

Belt Stolen—Two Thieves Caught

Last Thursday night some vandals stole from Frank Adams' sawmill near Chaneyville a fifty-foot belt, together with other mill fixtures, amounting to about $45. A warrant was sworn out before Squire Pardew by Adams and on Monday Constable B. F. Leasure, together with Detective Swartzwelder, Conner, Collins and Adams, the guilty parties, W. W. Davis and son Harry, were arrested and placed in Fort Dodson, the son for committing the theft and the father for receiving the stolen property. Another son, who is implicated, was not captured.

After the arrests were made a search for the goods was instituted and the fifty-foot belt was found snugly wrapped up in a bed in the house and the majority of the other goods were found hidden at different places around the premises.

HECKERMAN LETTER

Severe Snow Storm in New York State.

Eagle Hotel, Norwich, N. Y.

February 20, 1910.

This is a pretty New York city and this hotel is about like the Bedford hotels.

Since writing you last I have been to Utica, a very pretty city. 'Tis there that they put their hearses on runners and 'keep them' on the same till Easter. Snow! snow!! the beautiful snow!!! I never in all my life saw so much snow. Why, it is up to your arms on the level and all along the streets where it has been shoveled off the sidewalks the banks are from six to 20 feet deep. Every here and there you see a horse sticking in the snow, unable to help himself at all. You will see several men shoveling the snow away from the horse so he can work his legs. I asked the folks if they do not fear floods when this great bed of snow leaves. Some say "Yes," and others shrug their shoulders and say "Oh! I don't know; we often get very deep snows and they leave and do no harm."

I heard one man today ask another whether or not he considered a hen a bird. Of course, I had to have a hand in the argument. It seems that the lawmakers and potentates at Washington have this momentous question before them for decision. We all know that hens are feathered creatures and have wings with which they can fly, and with a little practice can fly quite well. Hens lay eggs. Nothing new in that remark; they have been observed in the actual operation. Nothing very strange in that either. Eggs cost money; anywhere from 34 cents per dozen to 60, and I doubt if the 60-cent eggs are better than the 34 or 40; but I hope all are better than those served to me for supper. But to my argument: It is a fact capable of proof, that hens continue to produce eggs, hence if hens are so endowed by nature they are to be classified with birds. The question is material and relevant for the reason that under the Payne Tariff Law eggs are dutiable at five cents per dozen, while birds' eggs are on the free list.

A New York importer brought over from Europe a ship load of eggs. He expected to make a fortune on them, but just as the European eggs arrived the price of American eggs dropped. Yes, but not hard enough to smash the bottom out of the market, but enough to lessen the importer's profit quite a little. Now he appeals to the Treasury Department at Washington to know if a hen is a bird. If the answer is in the affirmative he will, of course, save the duty (five cents per dozen) on his lot of eggs. Once upon a time the wise heads at Washington defined frog legs as poultry. Surely a hen looks more like a bird than a frog looks like a chicken. One of the wise ones is quoted as saying: "I know some hens that are birds," and I have known a few that were bats. The market men say, however, that much depends on the hen's being a bird, on account of her age, for if you get some old hen on your plate you may find it hard to believe that she was ever a bird, even though they both belong to the feathered family. The verdict from the wise house will be awaited with interest. Last week I came through the Utica and Mohawk Valleys, all covered to a depth of three feet with snow. 'Tis in this section that they raise hops much as farmers raise corn. The picking of hops is considered a most healthful work and many come from all over the country to pick them as the dust and smell from the green hops relieves all forms of breast trouble.

I just hear some one say it is snowing furiously, so that the forecasts of the weather prophets come true. A whole week ago I saw that at the time we would have another severe snow storm with the mercury low than at any other time this winter. I suffer with my hands and I would like some of your readers to tell me how that is. You see I never cover my face and while it gets cold, I never gets as cold as my hands.

There is one of the greatest revivals in progress here that ever struck a town or city. There were in procession a few evenings ago 200 on horseback and 2,000 all singing as they marched along through the snow; the result that showed itself in 48 hours was the increased business the tramp brought the doctors. Everyone gets excited; three-year-old children when asked what the preacher said, throw up their little arms and yell loudly "Holy Moses!"

Yours truly,
M. P. Heckerman.

CLAYCOMB FOR LEGISLATURE

Endorsed by Anti-Saloon League of Blair County.

The Altoona Tribune of last Friday contained the following article concerning a former Bedford County boy:

"The Altoona Anti-Saloon League Executive Committee has placed its stamp of approval on the candidacy of D. Lloyd Claycomb, Esq., for the Democratic nomination for the General Assembly from the First District of Blair County. This action was taken at a meeting of the committee last evening and is in recognition of Claycomb's loyalty to the organization's cause.

"Mr. Claycomb is probably the only candidate for the Democratic nomination for Assembly in the field at the present time. There will be others, no doubt, come out for the honor before the primaries, which will be held in June.

"The following was given out for publication last evening from the headquarters of the Anti-Saloon League in the Mateer Block, on Eleventh Avenue:

"Appreciating the loyalty of D. Lloyd Claycomb, Esq., to local option in his former candidacy and recognizing his splendid ability and his entire fitness to represent the First District of Blair County in the General Assembly, the Anti-Saloon League Executive Committee wishes to announce its hearty endorsement of Mr. Claycomb in his effort to secure the nomination at the Democratic primary. In this matter we have the entire approval of the state league also, believing if Mr. Claycomb is nominated and elected he will not only vote but work for the passage of a local option bill similar to the one that was before the last Legislature. We ask the friends of our cause in the Democratic party to give him their earnest support at the primary, and if nominated, at the election.

"Rev. H. A. Kelsey, Chairman."

The Bright Side

There is many a rest in the road of life,

If we only would stop to take it,
And many a tone from the better land,

If the querulous heart would wake it!

To the sunny soul that is full of hope,
And whose beautiful trust ne'er faileth,

The grass is green and the flowers are bright,
Though the wintry storm prevail-eth.

RECIPES

Plain Chocolate Filling

Melt two and a half squares of chocolate in a double boiler; add one-half cupful of powdered sugar and three tablespoonfuls of milk and stir until perfectly smooth; add the beaten yolk of one egg, half a teaspoonful of vanilla and a half teaspoonful of cinnamon and cook in the double boiler until thickened; when cold spread between the layers.

Vinegar Candy

Allow to six pounds of white sugar (granulated) one cupful each vinegar and water. Boil without stirring for about half an hour; then add one teaspoonful of butter, one teaspoonful of soda dissolved in one tablespoonful of hot water and one teaspoonful of vanilla. As soon as it crisps when dropped in cold water pour into buttered pans. When cool enough to handle pull until white and cut into sticks.

Farmers' Fruit Cake

Three cupfuls of dried apples, soaked over night in cold water. Drain off the water and cut into small pieces; simmer for two hours in two cupfuls of molasses. When cold, add one cupful of butter, two eggs, well beaten, two teaspoonfuls of dry soda, one and one-half cupfuls of sour milk, spices, one cupful of chopped raisins, one cupful of sugar, a little salt, and four cupfuls of flour. This will make two loaves.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Marguerites

Boil one cupful of sugar and half a cup of water until the syrup will thread. Remove to back of stove and add two marshmallows cut into small pieces. Pour on the whites of two eggs beaten until stiff, then add two tablespoonfuls of shredded cocoanut, one cupful of English walnuts broken in small pieces, and one-fourth of a teaspoon of vanilla. Spread saltines with this mixture and bake until a delicate brown.

Practical Way to Make Cookies

So many recipes that sound "just right" fall far short of our expectations. In making cookies my experience has been that there is more in the method of mixing than in any other recipe, and this is my way of making them:

Cream well together one cupful of butter and two of sugar. Add two or three eggs—according to season and scarcity—then very carefully stir in one cupful of sweet milk and any desired flavoring extract. Double the quantity is required for cookies than for cake. Sift three teaspoonfuls of baking powder with at least a quart of flour and make a well in the middle—exactly as for biscuit or light bread—and into this pour the mixture. With the hand, work it into a smooth loaf, roll thin, cut out and bake quickly.—"Household Information and Economics," in the Ladies' World for March.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS

Without courage there cannot be truth, and without truth there can be no other virtue.—Scott.

He that wrestles with us strengthens our nerves and sharpens our skill. Our antagonist is our helper.—Burke.

Success comes in cans; failure in can'ts.

If life is a blank, it's up to us to fill it out.

When "it's as broad as it's long" it must be the square thing.

The value of time: Lost capital may be restored by diligent use of experience; time lost is lost forever.

Foley's Kidney Remedy will cure any case of Kidney or Bladder trouble that is not beyond the reach of medicine. No medicine can do more. Ed. D. Heckerman.

WOMANLY WISDOM

If you would be farsighted you must learn to live on the heights.

Happiness consists often in just forgetting.

Quit worrying over things you can not help.

Any old magazines lying around out of use? Lend them to a neighbor who has none.

Fried ham is improved in flavor by sprinkling it slightly with sugar on both sides before frying.

Woman, what, downhearted? Then go outdoors and stay a few hours a day. Nature is a wonderful healer of weary nerves.

A glazier's knife will be found an excellent thing in the kitchen with which to scrape and clean the bottoms of pans and kettles.

When baking cookies, or any small cakes, invert the pan and place them on the bottom. They are not so easily scorched and are more readily removed.

Ask the good man of the house to look at the supports of your swinging shelves in the cellar, before they come down under the load of canned things. Such a smash would be grievous, indeed. Don't risk it.

Never buy spectacles of men who come along offering you great bargains. The chances are that you will not get a fit and you will pay more than the glasses are worth. The eyes are too precious to be tampered with in any such way. Go to some reliable man and have your eyes really fitted. That's the way to do it.—March Farm Journal.

POULTRY NOTES

On cold nights the hens should have extra protection.

More fowls die from bad air than from cold weather.

There is both pleasure and profit in fowls rightly managed.

Even the hen needs a balanced ration if she is to lay well.

Winter eggs mean close application and careful handling and feeding, but it all pays.

Exercise is necessary all the year round. It must be enforced in the winter time.

It is easier to keep chickens well than to make them well.

Roots make a good substitute for green feed in the winter.

Fill the hen's crop right if you would have her fill the egg basket.

The egg crop is said by an authority to be worth 60 per cent. of the poultry output and you know the poultry output is pretty large.

The farmer is best fitted for turkey raising because he has a place for them to roam and it is the nature of the turkey to demand a broad feeding ground.

If you keep guineas, turkeys and chickens, build separate houses for them. If you confine all three varieties in one yard during the winter it will prove disastrous.

ANY WOMAN CAN HAVE

BEAUTIFUL HAIR

Many women do not realize the attractions they possess because they do not give proper attention to the hair.

The women of Paris are famed for their beauty, not because their facial features are superior to those of other women, but because they know how to keep young by supplying vigor, luster and strength to the hair.

Three years ago Parisian Sage could hardly be obtained in America. But now this delightful hair tonic and dressing can be had in every town in America. F. W. Jordan sells it for 50 cents a large bottle, and he guarantees it to grow beautiful, luxuriant hair; to turn dull, lifeless hair into lustrous hair; to stop falling hair; to stop itching of the scalp. Ask for Parisian Sage.

Blues Are Fashionable

There are all shades.

The navy will never lose caste for tailor-mades.

And the pale colors are delightful for evening.

Gobelin blue is often seen in the spring fabrics.

Then there is the pretty "Delft."

Porcelain blue, too, is seen.

Royale is still another shade.

And cadet blue is yet another.

"Ciel," a delicate sky-blue green—

an exquisite tint—is lovely in crepey silks.

If you haven't the time to exercise regularly, Doan's Regulents will prevent constipation. They induce a mild, easy healthful action of the bowels without griping. Ask your druggist for them. 25c.

Why Pat Didn't Pay

An Irishman refused to pay his doctor bill, and when asked his reason for it he said: "And sure, what shall I pay for? He didn't give me anything but emetics, and niver a one could I keep on my stomach at all, at all."

Daily Thought

No man can justly censure or condemn another, because indeed no man truly knows another. This I perceive in myself; for I am in the dark to all the world, and my nearest friends behold me but in a cloud.—Sir Thomas Browne.

Not Sisters

Now and again you see two women passing down the street who look like sisters. You are astonished to learn that they are mother and daughter, and you realize that a woman at forty or forty-five ought to be at her finest and fairest. Why isn't it so? The general health of woman is so intimately associated with the local health of the essentially feminine organs that there can be no red cheeks and round form where there is female weakness.

Women who have suffered from this trouble have found prompt relief and cure in the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It gives vigor and vitality to the organs of womanhood. It clears the complexion, brightens the eyes and reddens the cheeks.

No alcohol, or habit-forming drugs is contained in "Favorite Prescription." Any sick woman may consult Dr. Pierce by letter, free. Every letter is held as absolutely confidential, and answered in a plain envelope. Address: World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, Pres., Buffalo, N. Y.

A CORRECTION

Also Facts Concerning the Twenty-Second Infantry.

In the announcement of the death of Charles Miller of Everett, I find it is said he was a member of the 22d Pa. Infantry during the Civil War. I wish to correct several inaccuracies in the article.

Comrade Miller served in the 32d U. S. Colored Troops. That regiment was organized February 1864. Charles Miller was mustered in February 25, 1864; mustered out August 22, 1865, with Co. G, 32d Regt., U. S. Colored Troops.

Now as to the 22d Pa. Infantry. That was one of the first twenty-five regiments of Pennsylvania that answered the call for 75,000 troops in April 1861. Of these twenty-five regiments of "three months' men" but two regiments re-enlisted for a longer term. The 11th and the 23d Pa. Inf. were organized for three years, and the 11th veteranized late in 1863 to serve another term of three years. Two other regiments bore the designation 22d Pa. The 22d Regiment of Emergency Troops organized and disbanded in September 1862.

The 22d Regiment of Cavalry was organized early in 1864. Two companies of cavalry had been recruited in Washington County in 1861; these were known as the Ringgold Cavalry. Four companies also from Washington County were recruited in 1862 and another in 1863. In June 1863 a battalion of cavalry was recruited for six months, principally from Blair and adjacent counties in Juniata Valley. These companies were not transferred to the new regiment in February 1864 but many of the men, when discharged from the six months' service, re-enlisted in the new regiment being organized from the Washington County Companies.

The editors of newspapers are not to blame for mistakes that are made by the friends of deceased soldiers and sometimes it is said that a soldier served through the entire war in a certain regiment while, in fact, that regiment had an existence of but three, six or nine months; yet the soldier might have been in service during the greater part of the war in some other organization. Mistakes can easily be made in speaking or writing of a man's service in a Pennsylvania regiment.

We had 13th Pa. Inf., 13th Reserves, Infantry (the Old Bucktails), 13th Cavalry, and the 13th Militia or Emergency Troops, called out in 1862 in September during the Antietam campaign. Men of the 149th and 150th tell us they were in the "Bucktails," but we must ask which to learn the regiment. The plan was to add the 149th and 150th, recruited in 1861, to the 42d (the original Bucktails, 13th Reserve Regiment) to form a Bucktail Brigade. Well, they were all good regiments but the old 42d was always jealous of the name.

CASE AFTER CASE

Plenty More Like This in Bedford. Scores of Bedford people can tell you about Doan's Kidney Pills. Many a happy citizen makes a public statement of his experience. Here is a case of it. What better proof of merit can be had than such endorsement?

W. H. Weyant, 243 W. Pitt Street, Bedford, Pa., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills are by no means a new remedy to me. I have used them off and on for a number of years and would not think of being without a supply on hand. I am obliged to be on my feet a great deal and this brought on attacks of backache and other symptoms of kidney complaint. Doan's Kidney Pills, which I procured at John R. Dull's Drug Store, gave me prompt relief and consequently I do not hesitate to recommend them to other persons afflicted with kidney trouble." (Statement given October 14, 1907.)

Two Years Later On November 13, 1909, Mr. Weyant said: "I have no reason to change my high opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills, which I have previously expressed through the local papers. The relief this remedy brought me has been lasting and during the past year or so, I have been in good health. You may continue to use my name as one who knows of the merit of Doan's Kidney Pills from personal experience."

Cake Making

A light hand contributes much to success in cake baking. A beaten dough, ready to go into the pans, should not stand after it is prepared. As the dough is full of air cells, caused by the chemical action of baking powder or soda, it must be baked before these air cells have time to break. This, too, is one reason why eggs are added as a last ingredient. Flour is sifted many times to admit air and thus lighten it.

THOUGHTS BY THE WAY

Effort does not promise success, but it is the first step toward it.

Work without rest is like bread without yeast; it is heavy.

The world does not owe us a living until we prove our worth.

If a man had no failures he would not understand what success means. Character does not promise success, but without it a man is pretty sure to fail.

It is just as well to believe only half you hear, and then half of that.

Work well done today and tomorrow promises better next week.

Few people put off until tomorrow the meanness they can do today.

Sometimes a man is as badly frightened by an imaginary snake as a woman is by a real mouse.

A difficult piece of work is like a story with a strong plot; it keeps the best for the end.

Don't give up until you have tried everything. Many a race horse wins on the last stretch.

All the disagreeable people don't live on cross streets.

Scandal is the battle of fools who judge other people by themselves.

There are times when a man shall act and times when he shall talk. He must learn how and when.

Some people get credit for being patient when in reality they are too cowardly to start anything.

It is well to train the mind to think accurately and the hand to respond quickly.

Rest does not mean idleness; more tangible dreams are spun during the day than at night.

Thirteen Errors in Life

The 13 errors in life have been enumerated as follows:

To attempt to set up our own standard of right and wrong and expect everybody to conform to it.

To try to measure the enjoyment of others by our own.

To expect uniformity of opinion in this world.

To look for judgment and experience in youth.

To endeavor to mold all dispositions alike.

Not to yield to unimportant trifles.

To look for perfection in our own actions.

To worry ourselves and others about what cannot be remedied.

Not to alleviate if we can all that needs alleviation.

Not to make allowances for the weakness of others.

To consider anything impossible that we cannot ourselves perform.

To believe only what our finite minds can grasp.

To estimate people for some outside quality, for it is that within which makes the man.

Consider

Consider The lilies of the field whose bloom is brief;

We are as they: Like them we fade away, As doth a leaf

Consider The sparrows of the air of small account;

Our God doth view, Whether they fall or mount: He guards us, too.

Consider The lilies that do neither spin nor toil,

Yet are most fair: What profits all this care, And all this toil?

Consider The birds that have no barn nor harvest-weeks;

God gives them food:— Much more our Father seeks To do us good.

—Christina Rossetti.

Household Notes

Honey should be kept in the dark or it will granulate.

Japanned trays should be cleaned with a little sweet oil and then polished with a soft cloth.

Thin brown bread and butter sandwiches are the most appetizing accompaniment for fish salad of any sort.

The price mark of chinaware which is not easily removed can be scoured off with a piece of lemon and salt.

Fringed dollies are kept in better condition if the fringe is brushed with a small nail brush rather than a comb.

Oilcloth can be brightened quickly if after it is washed and dried it is rubbed over with a cloth dipped in skim milk.

If the temper of an iron is spoiled it will never retain the heat so well again. Never let irons stand on the range and get red hot.

The unpleasant creaking of a door can be remedied if the edges are rubbed with soap and a few drops of oil are put in the hinges.

When chopping suet, add a little flour. The suet will separate better and the work will be done much more quickly and easily.

Mildew spots may be removed by a mixture of soap and powdered chalk.

The quickest cleaner for a sticky bread or cake pan is a crust of stale bread.

Have you ever made milk toast from brown bread? It is delicious and a pleasant change. Whole wheat bread is also excellent toasted.

In ironing handkerchiefs it is well to begin at the center; if one irons the hem first the middle will have a tendency to bulge or "full."

When eggs are frozen in the winter putting them in cold water will draw out the frost. If a frozen egg must be boiled put salt in the water and it will not run out of the shell.

THERE'S NO RISK

If This Medicine Does Not Benefit, You Pay Nothing.

A physician who made a specialty of stomach troubles, particularly dyspepsia, after years of study, perfected the formula from which Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets are made.

Our experience with Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets leads us to believe them to be the greatest remedy known for the relief of acute indigestion and chronic dyspepsia. Their ingredients are soothing and healing to the inflamed membranes of the stomach. They are rich in pepsin, one of the greatest digestive aids known to medicine. The relief they afford is almost immediate. Their use with persistency and regularity for a short time brings about a cessation of the pains caused by stomach disorders.

Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets will insure healthy appetite, and digestion and promote nutrition. As evidence of our sincere faith in Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets, we ask you to try them at our risk. If they do not give you entire satisfaction, we will return you the money you paid us for them, without question or formality. They come in three sizes, prices 25 cents, 50 cents and $1.00. Remember you can obtain them only at our store, The Rexall Store. F. W. Jordan.

Mrs. Susan Mikesell, widow of John Wareham, died on Monday, February 21, at her home in Earlston at the age of 84 years.

About six weeks ago she fell and fractured her hip and, owing to her advanced age, did not long survive the shock.

Five sons and one daughter survive: Isaac of North Dakota, Mrs. Lottie Sweeney of McKeesport, Samuel, Jacob, Simon and Abraham, all of Earlston; also two brothers, Samuel Mikesell of near Clearville and Simon of Chicago.

The funeral took place on Wednesday, interment being made in the Hershberger graveyard in Snake Spring Valley. Deceased was a faithful member of the Brethren Church.

Capt. Bogardus Again Hits the Bull's Eye

This world famous rifle shot who holds the championship record of 100 pigeons in 100 consecutive shots is living at Lincoln, Ill. Recently interviewed, he says: "I have suffered a long time with kidney and bladder trouble and have used several well known kidney medicines, all of which gave me no relief until I started taking Foley's Kidney Pills. Before I used Foley's Kidney Pills I was subjected to severe backache and pains in my kidneys with suppression and oftentimes a cloudy voiding. While upon arising in the morning I would get dull headaches. Now I have taken three bottles of Foley's Kidney Pills and feel 100 per cent better. I am never bothered with my kidneys or bladder and once more feel like my own self. All this I owe solely to Foley's Kidney Pills and always recommend them to my fellow sufferers." Ed. D. Heckerman.

Air-Slaked Versus Fresh Lime

A Northampton County farmer, who intends commencing the spraying of his fruit trees, as early in the spring as possible, to rid them of scale insects, wrote to Professor H. A. Surface, State Zoologist, Harrisburg, inquiring whether air-slaked lime is as good as that slaked with water for the making of the lime-sulphur wash. He stated that he has some lime that was bought at the kiln about two months ago, which is now air-slaked, and he is unable to get any fresh lime at this time.

Professor Surface's answer was as follows:

"Replying to your letter asking if air-slaked lime will do as well as fresh burned lime, I beg to say that after it has become thoroughly air-slaked it will not do at all for making the lime-sulphur wash, which is the best preparation for destroying San Jose scale. If it is not thoroughly air-slaked, or has been slaked but very recently, it may serve the purpose, but when it has crumbled to a powder it should be avoided.

"The thing to do is to get your fresh-burned lime when you can, and put it into a barrel, a little at a time, and slake it, and as soon as you get the barrel full of the lime thus slaked, pour water on it; of course, being careful to let it become slaked before attempting to fill the barrel. Keep it under water all the time, and you can take it out in the form of a paste, like thick putty, and use it in boiling your lime-sulphur wash or making Bordeaux mixture. It will be as efficient as the fresh lime. A knowledge of this will save you considerable trouble and time."

The Joke That Made Oliver Herford Famous.

In the course of a sketch of Oliver Herford in the March American Magazine, Frank M. White records the following witticism of Mr. Herford's, which won for him the laurel wreath of the Players Club of New York as the best wit.

"Herford first sprang into fame as a wit so long ago as when Mrs. James Brown-Potter, whose husband was a near relative of the late Bishop Potter, created a sensation by relinquishing home and family to go upon the stage. While the sensation was at its height the bishop, who felt that disgrace had been brought upon the Potter name by the lady's choice of a career, chanced at a dinner at the Players Club in New York to challenge any one present to make a joke about him that was not a pun based on the verb 'to potter.' Herford's response, 'Actresses will happen in the best regulated families,' won him the laurel wreath of the club, and it has not yet gone out of his possession."

The American Eagle

Our bald-headed eagle, so called because the feathers on the top of his head are white, was called the Washington eagle by Audubon, the great naturalist. Like Washington, he is brave and fearless, and as his name and greatness are known the world over, so can the eagle soar beyond others.

The eagle was adopted as the emblem of the United States in 1785, since when it has been used on the tips of flagpoles, coins, United States seals and on the shield of liberty.

POLITICAL "PAP"

It is a matter of fact, we are told, that at the State Department at Harrisburg preparations are being made for the advertisement of four amendments to the state constitution, which amendments were passed for the first time by the last Legislature.

The law requires that amendments be advertised twice in two papers of each county, once before the meeting of the next Legislature, which shall again pass on them, and the second time before they are submitted to the people.

We are not in position to speak for other counties, but we do know that in this county when the last lot of amendments was advertised only Republican papers were authorized to carry the ads, though The Gazette secured the copy from another source and gave the Democrats an opportunity to look them over, while the papers selected to carry them printed them three months.

It is estimated that the advertising will cost the State $200,000 for the two years, and this will go far toward keeping above water the heads of Republican papers that, without political "pap" could not exist. The cost of advertising the six amendments voted on last fall amounted to $243,000. The result of the advertisements, for the most part in Machine papers, was that they advocated the adoption of said amendments, including No. 7, which would have placed the power of appointing election officers in all election districts of the state in the hands of the Penrose machine and its local annexes. Our neighbor advocated the adoption of all of them.

The first of these amendments pertains to the establishment of new courts—which will, of course, make more jobs for distribution; the second will repeal the poll tax as a requirement to vote, and its effect can easily be seen; the third relates to courts in Allegheny County, and the fourth pertains to Philadelphia.

The State's Finances

The statement of the State Treasury for last month shows that receipts were the largest known in any February, amounting to $3,736,553.89, an excess of $1,108,735.03 over February last year. The payments were $1,499,044.55 against $1,209,761.05 for the same month last year.

The Illustrated Lectures

It is more or less of an experiment to bring a lecturer from New York City to Bedford and arrange for a cycle of illustrated lectures on "Our Own Country." But the educational value of such lectures cannot be disputed, and that is one of the chief reasons why Rev. Finks was persuaded to deliver the lectures to our community.

Two of these lectures are yet to be given, one this evening at 7:30, and the last one Sunday night at the same hour. The silver offering takes the place of an admission fee, and the public in general and in particular is invited.

The pictures shown in the first lecture on Alaska were wonderfully fine; in fact, "a Chautauqua in pictures," describes very well these lectures. They are an art gallery of America and for that reason, if no other, they deserve the attention of our people. The lectures are scheduled for the Presbyterian Church but they are intended for the public in the widest sense of the word. They are pictures which never disappoint.

Surprise Party

A pleasant surprise party was held last Saturday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. B. Salkeld, Six Mile Run, in honor of their son's eighth birthday. Everyone reports a good time. Refreshments were served. Those present were: Josephine Rees, Kathryn Cutchall, Clara Flagle, Beatrice Smyth, Adda Snyder, Katherine Snyder, Bess, Lelia and Bertha Salkeld, John Rees, John Rankin, Vaughan Reed, Will and Boyd Salkeld, Elmer Prosser, Will Flagle and Eugene Spargo.

Telegrams by Telephone

With the idea of putting into operation as soon as possible the plan to make every private telephone practically a telegraph office, the Western Union Telegraph Company recently authorized all its offices to open charge accounts with subscribers of any telephone company with which the Western Union has arrangements for the receipts and delivery of telegrams by telephone.

WHAT A WOMAN WILL NOT DO

There is nothing a woman would not do to regain her lost beauty. She ought to be fully as zealous in preserving her good looks. The herb drink called Lane's Family Medicine or Lane's Tea is the most efficient aid in preserving a beautiful skin, and will do more than anything else to restore the roses to faded cheeks. HOTELS CLOSE

Millin County Landlords Will Not Entertain Traveling Public.

Lewistown, March 2.—By a preconcerted arrangement, the hotel men of Millin County all closed their doors to the public last night. Two of the most prominent ones in Lewistown closed immediately after breakfast Tuesday morning. The large plate glass windows at front are frosted and the word "closed" written in large letters in the frosting. Others kept open until dinner had been served and two others will keep open to their regular boarders until Saturday, in order to give them a chance to provide a stopping place, but in all cases they are closed to transit trade.

The license Court sitting in New Bloomfield yesterday refused six of the applicants of Perry County. These are: one at Newport, one at Marysville, one at New Bloomfield, and Landisburg, Ickesburg and Sterrett's Gap.

George Smegh of Milroy, who pleaded guilty to selling liquor illegally, was sentenced to six months in the county jail and $500 fine. C. A. Jackson is under bail on the same charge and it is believed the clubs and other speakeasies will be brought to account wherever it is possible.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

Scribner's for March

A notable feature of the March number of Scribner's Magazine is the frontispiece, reproduced very accurately from a photograph direct from nature in colors by the Lumiere process. This and other beautiful Lumiere pictures accompany an article on "Color Arrangements of Flowers," by Helena Rutherford Ely. Mr. Roosevelt's Sixth Article, "Trekkling Through the Thirst to the Softik," is an entire change of scene and interest from the preceding narratives. Edith Wharton tells one of her most remarkable "Tales of Men" in "The Legend." "The Great Railway Rate Battle in the West," by Samuel O. Dunn, an authority on the subject, makes clear the complicated question which must appear soon in Congress, and about which the country west of the Mississippi is greatly excited.

Among the other papers are "An Untrodden Road," by Elliot Gregory, describing an out-of-the-way place in the Pyrenees; Francis Rogers' article on "The Neglected Art of Oratory," and an account in the "Field of Art" of American paintings that have been purchased for the Luxembourg. There is another Danbury Rodd story by Frederick Palmer; and a striking tale by Ex-Congressman Frederick Landis, entitled "The Angel of Lonesome Hill," which gives a glimpse of the White House.

A SINGLE HAIR.

By PERCY G. HALL.

[Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.]

The editor of the Excelsior Magazine sat at his desk opening envelopes containing contributions. Running over the sheets of one to discover if it came within the prescribed length, he found between two of them a hair. It was too long for a man's hair and too short for a woman's. But it must be one or the other, and since the manuscript was sent in by a woman he concluded that it had belonged to the latter. It was not black or brown or red; it was golden. And the name of the girl on whose head it had doubtless grown was Nathalie Rose Arrowsmith. But perhaps this was fictitious.

The Excelsior Magazine was published in the far west, where women, being comparatively scarce, are appreciated. Possibly it was this that led the editor to dream over the golden hair and Nathalie Rose Arrowsmith. He was a young man of ideal tastes. He was not the owner of the periodical, but an employee whose business it was to select such contributions as would fit in between certain other staple matter. He possessed literary discrimination, but was aware that this delicate faculty was not considered in fixing his salary. What was expected of him was to read the manuscripts that came in to see that there was nothing in them calculated to offend any of the magazine's patrons, selecting those that would fit the empty spaces.

That a good name for Miss Arrowsmith would be "the fair one with the golden locks" gradually insinuated itself into the young editor's mind. He estimated the length of her production and, finding it within limits, laid it aside for acceptance in case it contained nothing objectionable. Meanwhile his operative mentality was on his work, but his ideal faculties—those akin to soul—were on "the fair one with the golden locks." By the time he had read her manuscript he had conjured up a poetic, aesthetic condition that enabled him to see in it the highest degree of literary merit. The language was "plaintive" or gulch language, and the author had succeeded in giving it as correctly as if she had kept a cowboy's boarding house. There were Rattlesnake Bill and Mexican Pete, as "bad men as ever fanned a 45 or twisted a bowie." Then there was Cactus Kate, not overparticular in her loves, but "a heart as big as Table Mountain."

The story was available, but when the editor contemplated offering the management's limit of compensation for such productions—$2.50—his whole ideal nature sickened. Yet what could he do? Any suggestion to pay an additional sum for a literary gem would only meet with a snarl from his chief and the remark that "we ain't in this yere business to educate authors, but for dust." He concluded to soften the blow for the fair one with the golden locks by writing her a letter of apology for offering her so pitiful a sum for her production.

If he had stopped at this there need have been no harm done. All editors kindly insert feather beds under struggling authors before knocking them down. It's a feature of the business. But the gold strand had stuck in his head, and he added some "soft stuff." He inclosed the proprietor's check for the price to be paid and sent the whole away with a fluttering heart.

A few days later the young editor heard a stentorian voice in the manager's private room debating some question with all the intensity of language of Rattlesnake Bill or Mexican Pete in the story. Then the manager called the editor into his office. There stood a strapping cowboy whose yellow hair hung down under his sombrero. There were pistols and cartridges in his belt and spurs big enough for buzz saws on his heels. He was flushed with anger; but, on seeing the editor, who was a delicate fellow of five feet two inches and a hundred pounds weight, he stood astonished for a moment then burst into a fit of uncontrollable laughter.

"Be you the kid as writ that?" he asked, holding forth the editor's apologetic message.

The editor stood stupefied. "Waal, waal, I ain't on the blow about seel' big wonders, but this is the blardestest observation I ever made. So y' took me for a gal. And the hair ez got in between the sheets. A golden strand. And y' daubed in some soft soap on me. I sure never see nothin' like this before."

"Did you write the stuff?" asked the proprietor of Nathalie Rose Arrowsmith.

"Sartin. I read it to the boys, and they 'lowed it was fine."

"What made you choose that name?" "Why, pard, I was called sudden on a roundup and lef' the stuff with a young feller ez jist come out to the Peters ranch from the east to send to your magazine. He put on the name. He said he'd give it a nom der plum."

"It is a plum," remarked the proprietor contemptuously.

"Waal, little one, I come up yere to see what kind of a galoot took me for a gal. I thort as if there was any insult intended, though I ain't much on gun suddenness, I'd jist bore a hole in the man as did it. But you ain't big enough target for my guns. Good-by, Mr. Proprietor; goodby, little one."

And he walked out to the music of his spurs.

Then the manager turned to his editor.

"I reckon," he said, "this ain't no pasture for a moon calf like you? Y' better go east to some o' them college magazines. Here's your salary to date."

TROLLEY NEWS

Project Revived—Dissensions in Management Adjusted.

We learn that as a result of recent activity on the part of officials of the proposed Altoona, Hollidaysburg and Bedford Trolley Company, a new deal has been practically consummated and there is every reason to believe the long-delayed work will be started again and pushed to completion.

Although officials are very reticent, it is stated that a contract has been signed, under which F. C. Patterson of Altoona, the engineer in charge, with a corps of assistants, started this week to complete the survey between Loysburg and this place.

When this survey is finished the entire route will have been laid out and mapped, and contracts will be let for the immediate building of the road. It is said that internal dissensions among the officers and directors of the company have been settled. This seemed to be the only drawback to the early opening of operations on the construction of the line, as there has never been any serious difficulty about financing the project.

Dr. Sears will be at Bedford, Wednesday, March 9, when he can be consulted on the eye, ear, nose and throat.

Hyndman

March 2—Fred Sammel, the Bedford piano tuner, was in town Tuesday, en route to Johnstown.

Miss Elizabeth Payne, trimmer for Noel and Thomas, milliners, left Sunday noon for Baltimore where she was met by Miss Angwin Thomas. Both will return to Hyndman Thursday.

Miss Jane Noel of Cumberland is at home suffering from nervous breakdown.

Harvey Stuby and Nora Pizel, of Fossilville, were married at Hyndman today at 1 o'clock by Rev. J. M. Wise.

East Lynn was presented from the stage of Mullin's Hall Saturday night by some of the High School pupils. Under the direction of Profs. Erhard and Leydig, the performers had reached a certain proficiency that did credit to all concerned, and though the audience failed to hear and comprehend, it was no fault of the young actors and actresses. When the curtain rose the house was packed and instead of an attentive audience the players faced a regular bedlam. The rear of the house was occupied by young boys and young men, not men, really, but they pass as such, and from these arose shouts, exclamations and general confusion. Four or five times Prof. Erhard left the stage, came down with a polite request for order, but derision greeted him on every side. Then he sought out Policeman Karns, but he made no noise; oh no, he was very quiet, and the disorder continued. When the youth of America have such utter disregard for the law, then the force of it should fall heavily on them; and if the present representative of that law is not competent to preserve order and protect the rights of others, then some one should be found who can do it.

It is inconceivable that in a civilized community where there are men and women of true worth, that such an outrage should be perpetrated as was last Saturday night. Not only was it an insult to our school but to all those who desired to hear, and whose interest and sympathy was with the boys and girls who so valiantly enacted their parts, and the instructors who assisted them. It is said numerous empty whisky bottles were afterwards found on the windows, and this in itself explains part, and convinces us that the temperance movement was not started too soon.

Miss Myrtle Hersher of Mann's Choice spent one day in our midst the past week.

Mr. Callihan of near Springhope bought a pair of fine draft horses from Harry Clites, for which he paid the handsome price of $300.

Mr. and Mrs. David Diehl, of Bedford, and James Rouse of Youngstown, O., were visiting at the home of J. D. Wolf recently.

Ira Foreman vacated the property of Dr. L. M. Colfelt last Thursday and on Friday W. E. Souser moved into the above-named place.

Last Monday night the store of D. R. Smith & Son was broken into and robbed. The robbers escaped with very little plunder and between three and four dollars in small change was taken from the cash register. This is the second time the store has been robbed in the past year and the finger of suspicion points very strongly toward several parties. We hope that whoever is committing these depredations may soon be caught and justice meted out to him according to law. Mr. Smith offers $100 reward upon conviction of the midnight prowlers.

Dr. L. M. Colfelt of Philadelphia spent last week at his country home in our village.

We have been requested to announce that the ladies of the Epworth League will hold an ice cream and cake social at the M. E. parsonage this evening. All are cordially invited.

Helping Young Farmers

Every man sooner or later comes to a tight place where a loan will help him out. There a life insurance policy becomes a power. The loan value is a great feature. Begin now to save. It is easy. Ask Wm. S. Lysinger. He will explain.

Point

March 2—Wilson Hissong of Cessna spent February 22 as guests of his parents at Point.

Last week our people made good use of the snow, as sledding parties were on the move. The following families were visited: George Smith of Springhope, John Rock of near Schellsburg, Millard Lepply of near Point, and John Harvey Wolfe of near Fishertown. There were from 25 to 35 persons at each place, and now you can count about that number in this community who have the grip.

Bert Blattenberger, wife and little girl were visitors at George Griffith's over Saturday night.

Mrs. R. C. Smith is visiting her daughter, Mrs. J. E. Felters, at Osterburg.

Dr. Shoenenthal of New Paris was called to see the family of Harry Wonders on Tuesday. Mr. Wonders has a bad spell of grip, and Mrs. Wonders and both children are not well.

Dr. Clair Kirk has been attending the sick at George Griffith's for the last week, Mr. Griffith, Fannie, Jack and John, all being on the sick list.

Charles Miller, while hauling a load of lumber on Tuesday on the road near Harry Burns, had the hind wheels of his wagon break through a thin crust of ice and went into the mud up to the axle. The supervisors will have plenty to do as soon as they are sworn in.

Ralph Blackburn returned from West Virginia with a lot of horses on Tuesday.

Henry Turner of near Mann's Choice was a Point visitor on Tuesday.

Harry Musselman lost a fine young mare one night last week. Hooker.

New Buena Vista

March 2—Spring, according to the almanac, is just nineteen days ahead, but taking into consideration bird and insect life we are almost convinced that spring is with us now. Of course, we expect a mixture of all kinds of weather in March but all things point to an early season.

Mrs. Joseph Mowry, who is suffering with grippe, is improving. Quite a number of citizens from here and vicinity are attending license court in Bedford today.

Mrs. Annie Musselman, who spent the winter here with her brother, John Beegle, left on Tuesday for Martinsburg where she will make her future home.

John Beegle, who was confined to the house for several weeks owing to an injury to his leg, is able to be around again without the aid of a crutch.

Sarah Reilswick of this place is ill at this writing. We hope for her speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Mowry expect to be domiciled in their new home in the near future.

Grandma Bittner of near this place is on the sick list.

Quite a number of young friends of Miss Buella Suder surprised her at her home near here last Friday evening, it being her 21st birthday. So completely did they succeed in surprising her that, though she was lifted and seated in a fine new rocker, the gift of her friends, she did not notice the rocker or realize what it all meant until some one reminded her that it was her birthday. She also received some other fine presents.

Those present were: Misses Effie Deaner, Annie Fisher, Izara and Carrie Hillegas, Emma and Ella Noon, Sula Mowry, Grace Hillegas, Cora, Gertrude and May Weyant, Myrtle, Ida and Mary Suder; George, Frank and William Mowry, Ross, Michael and Howard Hillegas, Ralph Rock, Blair Hyde, Roy Huffman, Harry Deaner, Dan Egolf, Elmer Fisher, Frank Zeigler, Manford Noon and Ralph Weyant.

After an elaborate collation, such as befitted the occasion, the guests departed for their homes, wishing her many happy returns of the day.

"More to you, Wheeler! More to you!"

Nolan stepped toward the jurist.

"You're a generous foe, Judge Bartelmy," he said warmly, deceived by the smooth tactics of the judge.

"Foe? That's hardly the word," responded Bartelmy, and with deference.

"Wheeler and I merely energize differently. He is dynamic; I am static, and that is because he is young and I am old."

"He'll outgrow that, Judge. You never will," remarked Dupuy, crossing to Nolan's side.

"But under every system of free government," pronounced Bartelmy in his best judicial manner, "there have always been conservative and liberal parties, whose leaders, while they differed perhaps in method, have been stimulated by an equal love of country."

"That is true, Judge Bartelmy," said Brand, "but I can't concede that you belong to the conservative party."

The judge showed surprise.

"But I don't understand you," he stammered, when Brand went on determinedly:

"Are you not seeking to introduce into our country methods of government undreamed of by our forefathers?"

The judge laughed as though in agreeable tolerance. His skill at verbal parrying was standing him in good stead.

"Oh, I had as much enthusiasm myself in my youth," he said, "but my legal training has forced upon me a certain unfortunate exactitude of thought. But come, come. We old lawyers have long since learned that we cannot carry our quarrels out of court. For instance, of a morning my best friend, Judge Culver, may be at drawn swords with me over some point of law, but the same evening will find us hailing fellows well met, exchanging stories before a club fire."

Nolan nodded his head understandingly.

"Yes, Judge, that's life—that's life," he commented.

"Half the laws of our country are framed up in clubs," interjected Dupuy.

Bartelmy raised his hand and made a gesture of disapproval.

"I wouldn't say that."

Brand saw an opportunity to score.

"Likewise the safest methods of evading the laws are framed up in clubs," he shot at Dupuy.

Bartelmy pretended to side with Brand.

"That's neat, Wheeler," he laughed.

"He scored off you that time, Dupuy," Bartelmy paused. He had now reached a point where he was about to make his supreme effort to capture Nolan and the Advance, to make them friendly to him. He was about to play what Dupuy had truthfully termed "the trump card." "By the way, Mr. Nolan, Judge Culver and I usually dine two or three times a week at the Oak Door club. We need you there. We should have a man in all our discussions of public questions—we should have a practical man of affairs who knows what reformers like our young friend here are really trying to get at. Shall I propose you for membership?"

Dupuy watched the effect of Bartelmy's words on Nolan with intense eagerness. It was an anxious moment for both Dupuy and Bartelmy. If Nolan accepted they felt that they were safe. As for Nolan, he was greatly perplexed. He wanted to accept the proffer, both for his own sake and for his family's. Membership in the Oak Door club was equivalent to a ticket of admission into the fashionable circles of the city. He would be able then to put his wife and daughter in the way of gratifying their desires. Sylvester, too, would be benefited in whatever business career he should take up, and the membership would enable him to meet and make his personal friends the most prominent men of the city—the men he naturally craved to associate with—on terms of equality. Then he spoke:

"Really, Judge," he said warmly, "that's something that I never expected to hear from your lips."

"Not at all; not at all! I shall be delighted to put you up, and Dupuy will second me."

"With pleasure," bowed the lawyer. Nolan hesitated over his final reply. He remembered what Brand had stated regarding the attentions of Judge Bartelmy and his daughter. Probably this offer was a trick, a bribe, and it did not improve the situation to have Dupuy brought into it by the jurist as seconder of his nomination. Still, the idea came into his head—if he accepted it he did it with his eyes open; he need not necessarily change the policy of the Advance toward certain public men. Thus he reasoned, and still there lingered within him an insidious desire, even a prompting, in view of the advantages for himself and his family, to accept at all hazards, under any circumstances.

"Thank you, gentlemen, thank you," he said, temporizing, in an endeavor to gain time before actually committing himself. He glanced across the room at Wheeler Brand, wondering how he was accepting the situation. Brand took a quick step forward, straightened himself stiffly and shot a glance of warning over the shoulder of Bartelmy, whose back was turned to him. Nolan nodded his head slightly to show that he understood. Dupuy caught the interchange of signals, and he glared malignantly at the young managing editor. He saw that Brand would do his utmost to swing Nolan away from the subtle snare. Nolan addressed the judge, "I'll think it over—and thank you once more."

Bartelmy and Dupuy started toward a door.

"Now, if you will excuse us, Dupuy and I will join the ladies," said the jurist. "Wheeler, you're not going away yet, eh?" he added.

Brand moved toward the hall door and ignored the query.

"What's your hurry, Wheeler?" asked Nolan as Bartelmy and Dupuy disappeared.

"Oh, it's time to get back to the office."

"H-m! What's the trouble?"

"What's the use of talking about it?"

"Come, got it off your chest?"

"I don't have to tell you, Mr. Nolan."

He drew closer to his employer.

"You think Mike Nolan is going back on you—isn't that it?"

The young man's voice rang out in his deep disappointment that Nolan was lingering on the verge of an acceptance of Bartelmy's offer, which could mean only two things if his employer yielded, and these were the muzzling of the Advance and the silencing of Brand as long as he remained on the paper. He blamed Nolan bitterly for failing to spurn the offer outright on the moment.

"Do you think you can accept favors from Bartelmy with one hand," he cried, "and knife him with the other?"

Nolan gave a spirited but kindly reply:

"Hold your horses, Wheeler. You know I don't care anything about this social stunt for myself. It don't fit into my life, but remember I've got a family, and nothing comes ahead of them. Mother and I may have a jangle now and then; but, after all, we have been side partners for a good many years. And my girl! There ain't a finer educated or a prettier girl in New York, and she ought to be able to go anywhere, but she can't in this town—this cold man's town. Then, of course, there's Sylvester. I know he ain't as bright as he might be, and I've spent—well, more than twice your salary trying to get him through freshman year at Harvard, and I couldn't, but still he's my son, and if he wants to run around with these other sports, why not? I can afford it, and I guess the kid's got to sow his wild oats anyway. My wife and children ought to be happy with the money I've got and, as I figure it, if I join this Oak Door club I can help them to get what they want. Do you follow me, Brand?"

"Yes, I understand," sighed Brand.

"At first you took up the side of the people, and you are continuing at it. But you and your family have become ambitious, or, at least, so far as you are concerned, you are ambitious for them. When you begin to associate familiarly with rich men as your friend you'll soon find yourself playing golf or billiards with one, drinking whisky with another, and your son will marry the daughter of a third. You will forget all about the people. Your paper will become decadent and feeble. The circulation will dry up." He paused for breath and added warningly in strong tones, "The Advance is now at its zenith, but its decline begins the very day that you are elected to the Oak Door club."

Nolan reached over and seized Brand by the shoulder.

"Wheeler, you're a decent sort of a fellow. I like you and the things you've made the paper stand for, but you don't know what it means to put people that you love on the altar and cause them suffering for the sake of these—these general principles."

"Don't I!" exclaimed the young editor. "Well, that's exactly what I've done. I gave up the girl I loved, who had promised to be my wife, so that I might write the truth." In spite of the emotion which his words had aroused in him Brand's voice never faltered as he spoke.

"You did!" exclaimed Nolan amazedly. "Well, my boy, I don't understand you. I couldn't do that," he confessed.

"Don't think that it was easy for me to do. I've thought of her every hour of every day since, but she's—now his voice wavered—"well, she's forgotten, so it doesn't matter. Mr. Nolan, do you remember what it was that first brought us together?"

"Yes; that story about Judge Bartelmy, and it was a good one, and you've followed it up with a lot of good ones since. Why, Wheeler, there ain't a man in the country that can work up a series like you can. But, do you know, I'm beginning to think that the judge is not all bad. Mind you, I'm not forgetting old scores, but—I've seated myself—"did you ever think of it, perhaps we haven't all the facts of that affair? Some things have happened. Are you sure that he's so all-fired wrong?"

"Mr. Nolan, the half hasn't been told about Judge Bartelmy," cried Brand.

"Well, this is getting to be a pretty serious affair. We can't be too sure about our facts."

"Mr. Nolan, Judge Bartelmy is not only a dishonest judge, but he seems to have a destructive influence on every one near him. He's corrupt and corrupting, not only in his public but in his private life."

"Wasn't—wasn't it his daughter that you were engaged to?"

"Yes, it was, and he's using her just as he did her mother before her."

"You amaze me. What do you mean?"

Brand took a deep breath.

"Why, he surrounded her mother with machine politicians and shady financiers and crooked lawyers. He sent her to the state capital when he wanted to be senator, but it was impossible; to Washington when he wanted to be minister to France, and she failed, and again when he wanted to be judge, and she succeeded, and when she found out that he was using his judicial office to steal and that she had only been a lobbyist for his rotten schemes!"

"Well?"

"Well, it killed her, Mr. Nolan, and now he's using his daughter in the same way. He's filling his house with corporation jackals like Dupuy. He sends her here to muzzle you by working on your wife and daughter. He hates me, but he would let her marry me to have his enemy in the family and make him silent."

"Why don't you go to the girl and tell her?" suggested the newspaper owner.

"About her mother and why she died?"

"Well, perhaps not. But I hope you won't follow the Bartelmy story any further. I'll be just as well pleased."

"I've got to follow it, Mr. Nolan. I can't stop," ejaculated Brand. "I've got the goods on him now. I've got a story that will drive him off the bench when we print it."

"What?" half rising.

"True; every word of it." Brand paced nervously across the room.

"For God's sake, Wheeler, don't go off at half cock!" cried Nolan.

"Half cock! Why, I tell you I've got the facts. I've been working on it for months."

"Now, listen to me. You're a young man. In spite of what you say about him I know that in his public life he's a mighty well thought of by some of the most prominent men in this city, and—"

"—weakly—well, if they believe in him I don't see why—"

"Will nothing convince you?" excitedly. "If he should offer me a bribe to kill this story would you acknowledge then that he's a crook?"

"Why, yes, of course I would."

"Will you let me print that story in my own way and promise not to interfere?"

"Yes. But the girl," Nolan reminded him—"how do you think she'll feel if you print that story?"

But Brand was not to be swerved from his purpose.

"It can't be helped. I've got to go on. Somehow you know the thought comes to me that perhaps it all may turn out for the best."

"Well, I hope so," commented the newspaper owner, "but, man alive, this story you!"

He was forced to cease abruptly, for Judge Bartelmy and Ed Dupuy entered the drawing room and drew near.

CHAPTER VIII.

THE abruptness with which Brand separated from Nolan as they appeared aroused the suspicions of both the judge and his lobbyist satellite. However, they little imagined the pronounced seriousness of the conversation they had interrupted. In the mind of each ran the thought that the Advance's proprietor and his editor had been discussing the proposal to elect Nolan to the Oak Door club. Even a failure in this laudable venture they would have considered a serious setback, but probably had they an intimation regarding the story Brand wanted to write and the effort that was to be made to detect the judge in offering a money bribe they would have exhibited less of the easy assurance that marked their re-entrance into the drawing room.

"Mr. Nolan, I'm afraid I must be going," said Bartelmy. "I hope to see you at my house soon, and you, too, Wheeler."

Nolan rose from his chair.

"Judge, can you spare me a few moments?" put in Brand resolutely.

The judge gave a look of surprise.

"Certainly, my boy; certainly. Will you excuse me?" turning to Nolan.

Nolan, surprised at the readiness of Brand to begin on the plan to entrap Bartelmy, readily assented and proceeded into the library with Dupuy.

"Well, Wheeler, what can I do for you?" asked Judith's father.

The young man stepped close to the other and faced him squarely.

"Judge, how about your latest decision in the Lansing Iron case today?" he asked.

Bartelmy started back in surprise.

"It was in accordance with the statutes and the constitution," he finally said.

"The supreme court of the United States was at variance with you in a similar case," advised Brand.

"Sir," indignantly, "I decline to discuss out of court questions relating to my conduct on the bench."

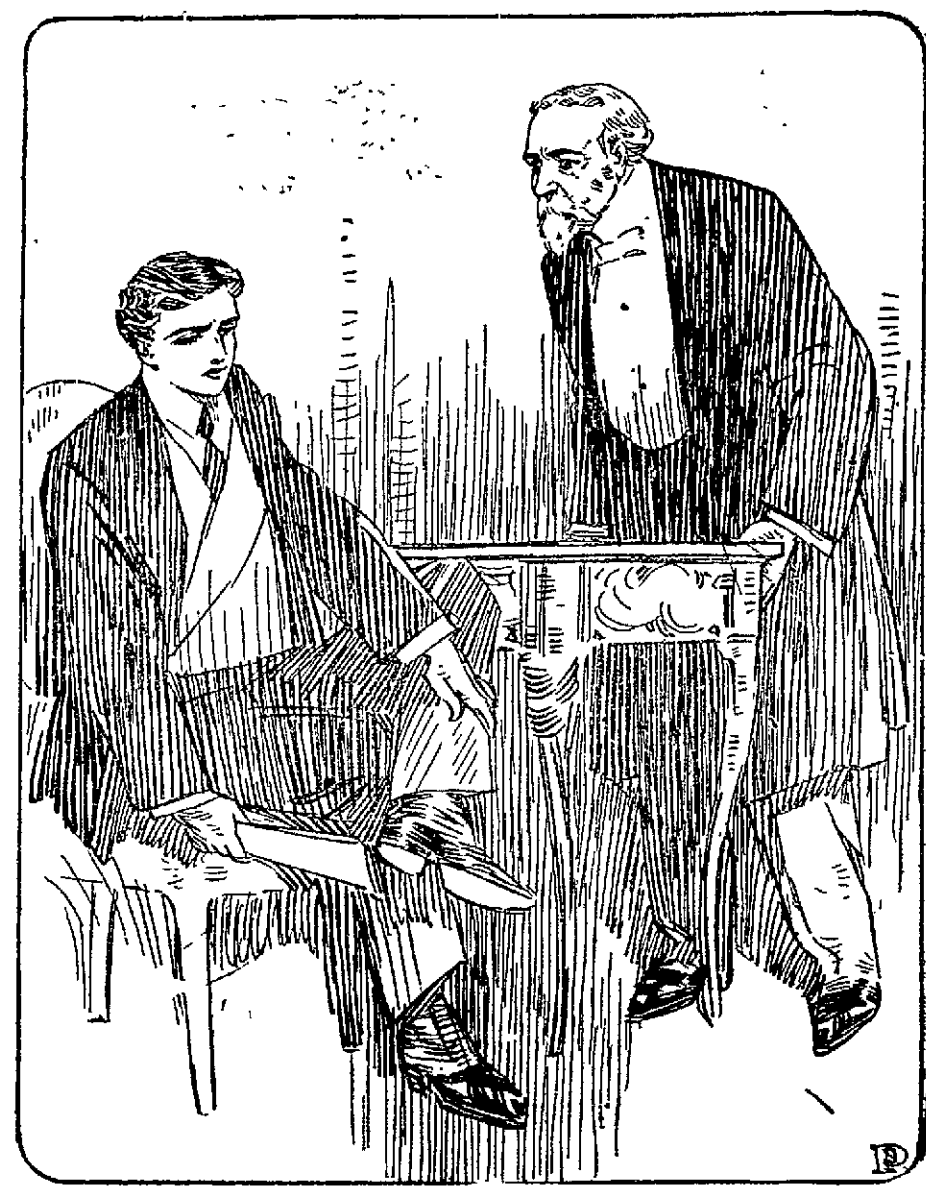

The judge moved as though to go.

"You weren't so particular this morning."

Bartelmy began to lose his confident, easy pose.

"I fail to comprehend you," he answered.

"Early this morning, between 1

"HOW ABOUT $10,000?" ASKED THE JUDGE.

o'clock and 3," went on the unrelenting editor.

The judge turned his head to one side and tugged nervously at his gray beard.

"A reporter for the Advance saw you come out of your house at four minutes to 1 and walk to a house on Washington avenue that belongs to the attorney for the Lansing Iron corporation."

Bartelmy turned his back on Brand, a furtive look coming into his eyes as he did so.

"You knocked at the servants' door, judge," continued the editor. "This man admitted you. One hour and fifty-seven minutes later you left that house by the same door and returned home rapidly on foot. You kept your coat collar turned up, and, contrary to your usual custom, you were a slouched hat pulled down over your eyes. Half an hour later Dupuy came out of the same house. Ten hours later you handed down your decision reversing on a technically the judgment of the lower court in the Lansing Iron case and freezing out the small stockholders in favor of the insiders, as usual. Those, Judge Bartelmy, are my facts!"

Bartelmy made a desperate effort to retain his self control and to command his ability to think clearly and effectively in this dire emergency. At last he spoke after minutely scrutinizing the accusing figure of Brand before him.

"It's easily explained, Mr. Brand," he said in honeyed tones. "It's a lie; that is all it is. Your reporter lied."

"I was the reporter," exclaimed the accuser in a supremely contemptuous manner, and as he spoke he wondered and marveled that such a man as the betrayer, Bartelmy, could be the father of such a girl as Judith—Judith, whom he was even now, he was convinced, putting away from his arms and his love for all time.

The false judge paled. His mouth became parched. Had he not leaned against a chair for support it is likely that his knees would not have retained enough strength to hold him up. The jig was up. Plainly the end was in sight. Indeed, it had already arrived unless—unless—Yes, there was one possible way out—if Brand would listen to the proposal. Listen? Every man had his price. Dupuy had told him so. He knew it anyway, and Brand was poor. He was ambitious too. Ah, reasoned the false judge, that is a dangerous combination—poverty and ambition. Few could overcome it honestly; few ever had, even would. And I am rich—

"Well, what do you propose to do?" he asked of Brand, putting it up to the other man to lead the conversation at this point, just as a clever tactician should.

"That depends," answered Brand doubtfully, a trifle weakly, sinking thoughtfully into a chair beside a table.

Bartelmy detected at once the note of doubt and weakness in Brand's reply and questioned to himself what it might portend.

"On what?" asked the judge carefully, trying to analyze the mental processes of his opponent, who stared at him across the table.

Brand spoke deliberately, in low voice.

"On whether you're willing to meet me halfway."

Bartelmy's hopes immediately surged high. Ha, as plain a bid for a price as he had ever heard, and he had heard them before. He gazed, reassured, at the young man's earnest face. Ha, how skillful he was, this young Brand! How he had deceived every one! Yes, he was just like some of the other reformers the judge had met—just like some of his political friends who started to clean up certain conditions, only to be retained to let them exist as they were. But Brand was the cleverest one of the lot by far, and probably he was to divide the proceeds of this bribe with Nolan. Oh, they were a cunning pair! Had even fooled Dupuy, who thought them dangerous. And what a son-in-law Brand would make! Yes, he could have Judith; he was worthy to possess the reigning beauty of a great city. So argued to himself the false judge, and he said:

"Of course I am willing to meet you halfway, but it all depends on whether we understand each other."

"Your decision was doubtless of some value to you, and if I am willing to keep silent about its antecedent circumstances then—" Brand looked the judge in the eye expectantly.

Bartelmy felt relieved. He felicitated himself on the fact that his judgment had been correct.

"Yes; you—" He halted.

"Why?" Brand paused.

"Well?" queried the judge irritably.

"There you are," responded Brand simply, his eyes meeting those of the jurist.

Bartelmy glanced cautiously at the editor, seeking for signs of deception, of a trap, but he found them not.

"Mr. Brand, what do you want?" he asked sharply.

"What's it worth to you?"

"I would prefer you to set the figure."

"No."

"How about $10,000?" asked the judge.

"Yes," agreed Brand, rising—"in cash tonight."

"Rather short notice for such a sum," protestingly. "Where shall I see you?"

"At my office."

"Your office—the Advance! No, no. I prefer you to come to my chambers about noon tomorrow. We shall be quite private there."

"I can't wait that long for it, judge. I've got to have it tonight."

"Oh, is it something of that sort? Well, then, come to my house after dinner."

"But I've got to be at my office," insisted the editor.

"I hardly like to go there, Mr. Brand."

"That's up to you, judge. But if you don't come the story goes to press tonight. Well?" with a rising infection.

"Judith Bartelmy entered."

"Will you come now, papa?" she asked.

"Just a moment, my dear. I intended to ask Dupuy to dine with us."

"Oh, can't you take him to the club?" she pointed.

(To be Continued.)

"I was the reporter, Judge Bartelmy."

erty and ambition. Few could overcome it honestly; few ever had, even would. And I am rich—

"Well, what do you propose to do?" he asked of Brand, putting it up to the other man to lead the conversation at this point, just as a clever tactician should.

HEALTH NOTES

Beef tea is one of the best stimulants and the poorest of foods. Acids taken before meals and alkalis taken after meals, lessen acidity.

You should not take tea or coffee with any meal containing fresh meat. Malt preparations are the best remedies for dyspepsia caused by foods containing starch. In combining the hair use a comb with blunt, widely separated teeth. Never use one with sharp teeth.

Much vinegar causes gastric catarrh, whereof comes indigestion, which in turn gives rise to redness of nose.

Lettuce and onions promote sleep. Resting with the head to the north is essential for the repose of some people.

Mustard poultices should be made with cold water, if you wish them to be hot; for the heat of the mustard is caused by an oil, and this oil is formed in the mustard by the action of cold water and is prevented from forming by hot water.

Growing Nasturtiums

Of nasturtiums there are dwarf and climbing varieties, to suit all situations, with flowers practically alike. Any ordinary well-drained soil will support them perfectly, even though it is decidedly thin. In fact, they blossom better in such earth than in very rich, for in the latter they run to leaf and are apt to rot off in wet weather, in their own dense shade, especially if at all crowded.

Now as early as the ground is ready. The dwarf or Tom Thumb division will be in bloom in two months, insects will leave them alone—aphids colonize unpleasantly on the climbers sometimes—and they will still be blossoming when frost comes if picked freely. This is true of most annuals, in fact; liberal picking induces generous flowering, for they go on, industriously bent on producing seed, until allowed to do so.—Grace Taber in Woman's Home Companion for March.

To Improve the hair To keep the hair bright and glossy, and encourage a strong and rapid growth, few better methods exist than that of ventilation. The treatment should be practiced for five minutes each day. The tresses should be separated one by one and shaken gently and slowly, so that the air may penetrate between the strands. If help is obtainable, a still better result can be secured, the attendant fanning the hair gently with the right hand, while supporting one lock at a time with the other. This must be persisted in until the hair feels light and the scalp cool and refreshed. Besides proving excellent for the hair, the treatment is wonderfully stimulating after severe brain work, and has been much recommended in nervous complaints, of which headache and insomnia form a part.

Lesson X.—First Quarter, For March 6, 1910.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Matt. viii, 2-17. Memory Verses, 2, 3—Golden Text, Matt. viii, 17—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

Dr. Scofield says in his notes on these chapters that the King, having in chapters v-vii declared the principles of the kingdom, makes proof in chapters viii and ix of his power to banish from the earth the consequences of sin and to control the elements of nature. He also says that the word "Lord" in verse 2 is used 663 times in the New Testament as the divine title of Jesus the Christ and is equivalent to the title "Adonai" in the Old Testament (Matt. iii, 3; iv, 7, 10; xli, 43, 45). In future when quoting from these notes from his new edition of the Bible I will give his initials, C. I. S.

In speaking of the kingdom the Spirit says through the prophet, "The inhabitant shall not say I am sick; the people that dwell therein shall be forgiven their iniquity;" "They shall obtain joy and gladness, and sorrow and sighing shall flee away" (Isa. xxxiii, 24; xxxv, 10). The kingdom of heaven, according to Dan. ii, 44, being at hand in the person and presence of the king, as declared by John the Baptist, Jesus Himself and the apostles (chapters iii, 2; iv, 17; x, 7), the King declares His power by a manifestation of several features of the kingdom. As we contemplate the righteousness of the kingdom as set forth in chapters v to vii and then the actual condition of things as they are about us in the world it is certainly a coming down to a much lower level, but it is to lift people up by the power of the King and His kingdom, and the multitudes are ready to hear of such a kingdom. Every form of physical suffering is suggestive of some disease of the soul, but nothing is quite so strikingly suggestive of sin as leprosy, which is so fully described in Lev. xlii and xiv. Sin is at the root of all our troubles. Can this man who in His teaching claims to be God do anything with leprosy? This leper believes that He can, but is not certain that He will. How the reply of Jesus must have filled him with an indescribable joy, "I will; be thou clean!" But these words came with the touch of Jesus, and with the touch and the words came the cleansing and the health immediately, and the outcast could return to his home and friends as a well man. That he may not think that his healer is in any sense contrary to the law of Moses he is told to show himself to the priest and offer the gift commanded. Well may we sing, "Unto Him that loveth us and hath washed us from our sins in His own blood."

His fame is spreading (are we helping to make Him known?), and now it is a century from Capernaum who has a servant sick of the palsy, grievously tormented. Luke, who was a physician, says that the man was ready to die, so that he must have been very sick. He also tells us that this servant was dear unto him and also that first of all the elders of the Jews came to Jesus on his behalf, saying that the century was worthy, that he loved the Jews and had built them a synagogue (Luke vii, 1-5). Jesus knew the century, as He knows all men and needs no testimony from any one concerning anybody (John ii, 24, 25), and He knew him to be a man with no thought of his own worthiness (verse 8 and Luke vii, 6, 7). He said, "I will come and heal him," and He went with them. As He neared the house the century sent friends to say that he did not consider himself worthy to have Jesus enter under his roof, but that he would be obeyed, if Jesus would only say the word he was sure that his servant would be healed. Jesus marveled at the man and said to those who followed, "Verily I say unto you, I have not found so great faith: no, not in Israel" (verse 10). His word for the century was, "As thou hast believed, so be it done unto thee," and those who had been sent, returning to the house, found the servant whole. Such faith on the part of a gentile led the Lord Jesus to speak of the kingdom into which many gentiles from all the world will enter, while many who think they are entitled to the kingdom will be shut out by their unbelief.

The next instance of His power is in the house of Simon Peter, whose wife's mother is sick of a fever, but just the touch of His hand dispels the fever, and she is seen ministering unto them. Sin paralyzes our bodies or consumes them with burning, destroying desire, but He who takes away the result of sin by being made sin for us can also deliver from every manifestation of sin to the intent that we may minister unto Him. At even He cast out evil spirits from many with His word and healed all that were sick and thus fulfilled a word in Isaiah, "Himself took our infirmities and bare our sicknesses" (Isa. 53, 4). It is often asked, Is the health of the body included in the atonement? We reply that the same great sacrifice which takes away our sins makes us sure of a perfect body just like His risen body, which shall never again be weak or sick or old or die, but that will be in the kingdom. All of His power which is seen in bodies now is but a foretaste of that which will be fully seen when He comes.

RED FACES AND RED NOSES CURED IN A SHORT TIME.

Do you suffer the embarrassment of carrying around an extremely red nose? or are you tortured with a red, blotchy, or pimply face? If so you are foolish to stand it long; it is the simplest and easiest thing in the world to get rid of. No matter what might have been the cause, the following harmless and inexpensive treatment will positively remove all traces of your embarrassment in from two to four weeks.

Get this prescription filled at any Drug Store: Clearola one-half ounce, Ether one ounce, Alcohol seven ounces.

Mix and apply to the parts affected as often as possible, but morning and night anyway, allowing it to remain on as long as possible, never less than ten minutes, the longer the better, then you can wipe off the powdery film deposited on the skin.

You can get this put up at any Drug Store.

For any skin trouble this has no equal.

These matters were argued pro and con and were taken under advisement by the Court. The attorneys representing the wholesale applications were heard as well as the attorney for the remonstrances against the same, after which court adjourned until 9 o'clock yesterday morning. The same crowd was present at the sessions yesterday and the same interest was manifest as on the preceding day. During these sessions the retail applications were considered separately, after which Judge Longenecker spoke at length upon the law pertaining to the granting of licenses and the duty of courts under the law. This was followed by Mr. Pennell in reply, after which the recess was taken.

We've Found It True
The person who handles the local department of a newspaper learns after due experience not to expect even briefly expressed thanks from a column of pleasant things, but he knows as surely as cometh the winter that a single line in which there is an unintentional misrepresentation will cause some one to be heard from as if from a house top. And it may be added that when he has made pleasant mention one hundred and ninety-nine times of some person, place, or thing, but on the thousandth time fails to do so, he must not expect to be forgotten. The omission may have been from accident, inadvertence, or even an entire lack of knowledge. It matters not; the simple fact remains and he will be judged by that.—Exchange.

Barnett's Store

This week we show for the first time this Spring many choice articles of new merchandise. It will pay you well to carefully look thru each department and familiarize yourself with the prices on these high-grade offerings.

With Easter only three weeks off—the matter of new clothes and accessories is the first consideration. Handsome new Spring Suits have come to us this week and your early examination of same is earnestly solicited. Magnificent tailoring is found on every ladies' suit on exhibition. What we are showing at $15.00, $18.00 and $20.00 you would be unable to buy in large cities at anywhere near these prices.

In addition to the stock of ready-made suits, we are showing a magnificent assortment of new fabrics by the yard. In worsted dress goods, some beautiful weaves in all the new shades arrived this week. Prices 50c, 85c and $1.00.

If you are interested in getting a new gown for Easter, it is about time you were looking around—as the prettiest materials always go first.

In wash fabrics—no house in the county shows such a full and varied line—especially such materials as are suitable for Coat Suits. Domestic and imported poplins are here in a wide range of colors in four different qualities at 12½c, 18c, 25c and 39c. Plain and fancy linens at 20c, 25c and 37½c. Plain and fancy galatea cloth 15c and 20c a yard. Popular cloths and silk mixtures in a wide range of colorings. Also splendid stock of braids, laces and embroideries in this week.

Don't forget that a new gown means a new pair of Shoes or Oxfords—both of which we have received a liberal supply of advance spring styles.

We have received a quantity of Scalecide and Lime-Sulphur Solution this week. Don't delay spraying; begin the first calm day to kill the San Jose Scale.
